

The Catafalque

United States Capitol

THE CATAFALQUE WAS HASTILY CONSTRUCTED in 1865 to support the casket of Abraham Lincoln while the president's body lay in state in the Rotunda. The catafalque has since been used for all those who have lain in state in the U.S. Capitol, as listed below. When not in use, the catafalque is on view in a specially constructed display area in Exhibition Hall in the U.S. Capitol Visitor Center.

No law, written rule or regulation specifies who may lie in state; use of the Rotunda is controlled by concurrent action of the U.S. House of Representatives and the Senate. Any person who has rendered distinguished service to the nation may lie in state if the family so wishes and Congress approves. In the case of unknown soldiers, the president or the appropriate branch of the armed forces initiates the action.

The catafalque is a simple bier of rough pine boards nailed together and covered with black cloth. Although the base and platform have occasionally been altered to accommodate the larger size of modern coffins and for the ease of the attending military personnel, it is basically the same today as it was in Lincoln's time. Presently the catafalque measures 7 feet, 1 inch (216 cm) long; 2 feet, 6 inches (76 cm) wide; and 2 feet (61 cm) high. The attached base is 8 feet, 10 inches (269 cm) long; 4 feet, 3½ inches (131 cm) wide; and 2 inches (5 cm) high. The platform is 11 feet, 4 inches (345.44 cm) long; 6 feet, 9 inches (205.74 cm) wide; and 2½ inches (6.35 cm) high. Although the cloth covering the catafalque has been replaced several times, the style of the drapery is similar to that used in 1865.

Since 1865, the Lincoln catafalque has been used for most of the services in the U.S. Capitol

The catafalque in 2006, after the most recent replacement of its fabric covering.

Rotunda. In the case of the Unknown Soldiers of World War II and the Korean War, an additional catafalque was built and the coffin of each at some point rested on the Lincoln catafalque.

The Lincoln catafalque has not been used for most of those lying in honor: U.S. Capitol Police officers Jacob Chestnut and John Gibson in 1998 and Brian Sicknick in 2021, Rosa Parks in 2005, and Billy Graham in 2018. In 2021, U.S. Capitol Police Officer William Evans became the first person to lay in honor on the Lincoln catafalque.

A list of those who have lain in state, in honor, or in repose, where the catafalque is used for a public viewing outside of the U.S. Capitol, appears on the next page.
